28.-30. soruları aşağıdaki parçaya göre cevaplayınız.

Of Turkish descent and born in Bulgaria, Naim Suleimanov was a boy wonder who set his first world record in weightlifting at age 16. Because of his small stature, he was nicknamed "The Pocket Hercules". He missed his first chance at Olympic success in 1984 when Bulgaria joined the Soviet boycott of the 1984 Los Angeles Olympics. Soon afterward, the Communists in Bulgaria forced its Turkish minority to take Bulgarian names, and he was then known internationally as Naum Shalamanov. While on a trip to the World Cup Final in Melbourne in 1986, Suleimanov defected and reappeared in Turkey, where he applied for citizenship. He also changed his name from the Bulgarian Suleimanov/Shalamanov to the Turkish Süleymanoğlu. A battle over which country he would represent in the 1988 Seoul Olympics arose. The Bulgarian government asked for, and received, $1,000,000 from Turkey to allow Naim to compete for Turkey.
