Dudley : Ah, he should have said that he 'put' the knives on the table.

- A) He can say his name and he knows his colours.
- B) Yesterday he said he 'putted' the knives on the table.
- C) He isn't talking right now; I put him to bed.
- D) Oh, he says lots of things; I can't remember now.
- E) Yes, he does; I love him very much.

3. Tomoko : Are there lots of Japanese students here?

Marcello : ----

Tomoko : Thanks Marcello. I'd really like that. Are there any other Brazilian students here?

Marcello : No, but I have lots of Brazilian friends outside the university because I work in a salsa bar.

- A) Yes, there are lots, but I try to avoid them.
- B) Why? Are you homesick already?
- C) There are four Japanese students in my business class.
- D) We can go for a drink later if you're not busy.
- E) There are only three, including Ryuichi, but I can introduce you to them later.

4. Natalie : Do you know anything about Cuban dancing?

Professor Cole : ----

Natalie : Whose son are you talking about?

Professor Cole : No, not like that; 'son' is the name of a dance brought to Cuba from Africa.

- A) No, I'm not from Cuba; I'm from the Dominican Republic.
- B) Okay, but I am a terrible dancer.
- C) I know a little bit: there is the rumba, and the 'son'.
- D) Sorry, I didn't mean to offend you with my dancing.
- E) Maybe, but only if I finish my homework.

- A) Come on, fish food isn't all that expensive.
- B) Do you mind feeding my goldfish for a week as I will not be in town?
- C) You know my fish has always been fond of you.
- D) What can I do to persuade you to take care of my fish in my absence?

4. Your wife has recently given up her job as a computer programmer to become a full-time artist. She asks you what you think about her painting of the houses in Safranbolu. You think the painting has too many bright colours, and needs to focus on one element. Wishing to be honest but still not wanting to hurt her feelings, you say:

- A) Have you drawn the pictures of the buildings in Safranbolu yet?
- B) I think you should try taking photos instead of painting.
- C) Why don't you try painting something else?
- D) It's really nice, but I wonder what it would look like with more subtle colours.
- E) I really like this one a lot; I love the way you use different colours to make the houses clearer.
